Dear Mr. Rowell:

Sir William Hearst says that Thursday, 10th May, would suit him very much better than May 3rd; in fact it is doubtful whether he could be with us on the earlier date. May we therefore, as we originally planned, have you to speak on May 3rd, in the course on "Women and Citizenship"? If you will be kind enough to let me know your subject we will get out our programme at once ?

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

Dear Mr. Rowell:

I am enclosing you a card of our new course of lectures. I hope that the course will appeal to you as being suitable for the purpose we have in view. The fact that you have agreed to deliver one of the lectures adds greatly to their value.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
